INTRODUCTORY REMARKS

1970 Vol. II

On the sixth page of Vol. I, The Eustis Families in United States from 1657 to 1968, published in 1968 by me, the reader will see:

NOTICE

All readers

This page asks for corrections and additions to be received promptly.

At this point I want to sincerely thank numerous, gracious and thoughtful persons, with the name of Eustis and residing all across the United States, for sending me a not unexpected variety of corrections and excellent additional material. If you were in my place I think you would be delighted with this help, equally as regards both the corrections and the additions.

My greatest regret lies in my failure to number all the pages of my previous Vol. I, but the pages of Vol. II are numbered. The material of Vol. I is logically arranged up to the Appendix in Vol. I, which was added on at the last minute before binding, to include material that might be interesting, if nothing more. Also, at the last minute, I received valuable additional material about descendants of William Eustis (6), (See Item #50 of Prof. Henry L. Eustis) and also, from Wyatt St. Barbe Eustis, covering descendants of George Homer Eustis (7).

I find myself in the position of having three indices as follows:

- a.) Following the reprint of the work done by Prof. Henry Lawrence Eustis, I have provided near the front of Vol. I a pink page and an index covering his Items 1-111 for the years 1657 to 1877.
- b.) Following the first pink page in Vol. I, I immediately provide a supplementary index covering my own compilation, which was designed to intermesh with that of Prof. Henry Lawrence Eustis, and to bring together the continuing lives of those living both before and those living after 1878 and their descendants to 1968.
- c.) At the back of this book, Vol. II, it is my somewhat unhappy task to provide a third index covering persons not previously listed, or in cases not adequately listed, in the indices described above, so that, as nearly as possible, I shall have covered both additional information and also newly found persons.

I sincerely hope, and presume, that seriously interested people of our name will be able to overcome the complications caused by my conscientious continuing effort to include everything, and to do it correctly, while avoiding the great danger that I might not ever be able to finish and to publish and make available my life long genealogical effort.

Inquiries have been made as to the source of the article in the Appendix of Vol. I, which starts:

"The Eustis Family of Norman Origin"

This article is in the great library at The New England Historic Genealogical Society on Newbury Street, Boston, Mass. I copied most of this article, verbatim, but omitted sketches of coats of arms applying to various Eustis families, which, to me, are only banners for battle, and are not clearly authoritative identification. The name or identity of the author of this article is not clear to me. It was probably written by William Tracy Eustis (7) about 1890, but it seems unfinished.

After publication of Vol. I, Mrs. Schilpp and I thought it advisable to determine what further persons, of Eustis name, we could find in the United States, who had not previously come to my attention. Accordingly then, Mrs. Schilpp and I searched at the Library of the New England Telephone Co. every available telephone book in the United States. I believe there were few, if any, telephone omissions. We found, of course, numerous names of persons known to us, or easily identified. In particular, we found a very rewarding continuation of the Samuel Eustis (6) group in the west. (See Item #36 of Prof. Henry L. Eustis; also see Samuel Shepard Eustis L-1 of my Vol. I compilation.) Also, please see Vol. II.

Our search of the telephone books, besides helping to identify the young or newly born, also uncovered a further group purporting to have come from Cornwall, England at the same approximate time as Tobias Eustis (See O-1 in my book and Truman William Eustis (P-1)). Also see Vol. II.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION RECEIVED LATE

Information including a letter, a chart and interesting information about "Oatlands Estate", all from Mrs. David Finley (Margaret Eustis (9) - see pages 56, 56a, 56b, 56c, 56d

Under Introductory Remarks - second page - Vol. I of Warner Eustis - Katharine Chotard should be changed to Clarisse Allain, daughter of Valerien and Celeste (Duralde) Allain, who became wife of George Eustis (6) - Item 49 of Henry Lawrence Eustis compilation.

Correction on Bledlow: Warner Eustis' speculation in Appendix, Vol. I, on location of Bledlow as being same as Bladon, burial place of Winston Churchill, north of Oxford, is wrong. Bledlow is in Buckinghamshire. It is a railroad station on the line from Oxford thru Thame to Princes Risborough. It is about 5 miles east south east of Thame, and Thame is about 12 miles east south east of Oxford. This place is located in the notes of Wm. Tracy Eustis in the New England Historic Genealogical Assoc., Newbury St., Boston and shows on British Auto Assoc. Map, page 18, map section 7-0-1965. It is the place where the parish records note the departure of William (1), son of Joseph, to Rumney Marsh, Boston about 1657

We are indebted to Mrs. Harold Seamon (Maude Eustis 9, D-53) for the following information about her father, Cartwright Eustis (8).

Resided in New Orleans and was a partner in the firm of A. Baldwin & Co., wholesale dealers in hardware. When he left Cambridge, Mass. in Jan. 1861 he went directly to his mother's plantation on the Mississippi River, in Issaquena County, Miss., where he remained until Feb. 1862. On March 8, 1862 he entered the Confederate Service as a corporal in the 10th Miss. Regiment, carried a musket until Oct. 17, 1863, when he was transferred to the 20th Louisiana Regiment as a Lt. He served as a line officer and adjutant until Aug. 1864 when he was assigned to Gen. R.L.Gibson's staff, remained with him thereafter until paroled at Meridian, Miss. in May, 1865.

He was shot through the left thigh twice; first by a canister-shot in Apr. 1862 at Corinth, Miss.; 2nd time by a rifle-ball in Jan. 1863 at Murfreesboro. He was continuously with the Army of Tennessee, commanded successively by Gen. Albert Sidney Johnson, Bragg, Joseph E. Johnston and Hood. He was in all of its battles and marches, except during period between Apr. 1862 and Jan. 1863, when he was on furlough at Natchez, Miss. recovering from wound he received at Corinth.

After the war his inclination was towards the law as a profession, but finding himself without the means of support, the heavy responsibilities pressing upon him, he went to New Orleans, La. Sept. 1865, accepted a position as clerk, on a very small salary, in the firm of which he became a partner, then conducted under the style of C. H. Slocomb. Mr. Slocomb died in spring of 1873, so he was admitted a partner in the firm, succeeding to the business on July 1, 1873, the style of the firm being then, as now, A. Baldwin & Co. importers and dealers in hardware. He was also extensively engaged in raising sugarcane and the manufacture of sugar, on Bayou Teche, in St. Mary's Parish, La. Member of the Board of Trustees of the Tulane Educational Fund.

The following condensed information about Eustis, Nebraska and about Percy Sprague Eustis (8) Item E-5 was received, courtesy of Mrs. Percy Winslow Eustis (8) of Sun City, California (see K-18, Vol. II of Warner Eustis), comprising a letter from Herman P. Weissert of Eustis Telephone Exchange, Eustis, Nebraska dated Oct. 16, 1970:

"This month, September 1936, Eustis, Nebraska celebrates its Golden Jubilee - honors, too, the man for whom it was named, Percy Sprague Eustis, whose distinguished career with the Burlington Railroad also covered the 50 honorable years.

Mr. Eustis, who still is known to personal friends and business associates alike by cryptic letters "P.S.E.", has been referred to as the outstanding passenger traffic official of American Railroads.

The career of "P.S.E.", like that of many enterprising American youths who climbed to positions of influence and prominence in the transportation industry, began in perfectly normal way of an American. He was born in Milton, Mass. on February 16, 1857, the son of Alexander B. Eustis. Following brief attendance at a private school, he began work in Philadelphia, Pa. at age 14.

In the summer of 1876 he met William Forbes, who was interested in the building of the C.B. & Q. Railroad, and to him Mr. Eustis expressed his intention of following the much earlier advice of Horace Greely if employment could be found "out west". Mr. Eustis was hired, reported for duty at Omaha, Nebraska on November 4, 1876, at a salary of $40.00 a month.

After several positions Mr. Eustis became Passenger Traffic Manager of the entire Burlington system, a post he held with distinction for a quarter of a century, until his retirement on June 1, 1927.

WILLIAM TRACY EUSTIS (7) - (See Vol. II, I-1)

WILLIAM TRACY EUSTIS was born at 79 Prince Street, Boston, September 29, 1822, and died at Brookline, Mass., October 11, 1906. He was the son of Joseph Eustis and Eleanor St. Barbe Tracy.

In 1828, his father being abroad on business, his mother moved to Portland, Maine, where they lived until 1831, returning to Boston in that year. In 1835 he went back to Portland to live with his uncle Charles Mussey, at that time a prosperous merchant, but who failed in the panic of 1837. Leaving Portland in the ship Eli Whitney, in November, 1837, he went to Savannah, Georgia, where he entered the employ of Greenwood and Upham, staying with them but a few months, when he returned to Portland and re-entered school, finishing his education in 1840.

His first real employment was in Boston with Henry B. Townsend, in the wholesale millinery business, where he stayed for a year and a half; but the business not being to his liking, he found a position with Cartwright and Thayer, oil and lead commission merchants, on India Street, who failed in 1842; and in April, 1843, he entered the employ of G. and N. Sturtevant and Co., which firm was shortly afterwards changed to Atkins and Sturtevant, where he stayed until 1849, when that firm was succeeded by E. H. Barker and Co., and he was with them until 1856.

In 1857 he entered the employ of Gardner, Wolcott and Co., and on the dissolution of the firm, became a partner of his brother-in-law, John Wesley Wolcott, and was with him until after the Civil War, during which he enlisted in the army, and served three months at Fort Warren, Boston Harbor, in 1862, as a member of the Independent Corps of Cadets, doing guard duty over some famous prisoners, among whom were Messrs. Mason and Slidell, of Trent fame, and General Simon Bolivar Buckner, who had surrendered to General Grant at Fort Donelson, and George Eustis (7), Item 81, of Prof. Henry Lawrence Eustis.

In 1868 he went with Sprague, Soule and Co., as a cotton buyer, and was with them until 1874; and in 1878 he rejoined his brother-in-law, and was with him until the latter's death, in 1885.

Retiring from business in 1886, he devoted himself, until his death, to genealogical research, particularly of his own and wife's families. Of the latter, the Dutton family, starting with only the fact that Henry Worthington Dutton, his wife's father, had received a legacy of about five dollars from his great uncle, Warren Dutton, he succeeded in tracing some three thousand of the Dutton name. He also added considerable further information to the Eustis record, which had been compiled in 1878 by Professor Henry Lawrence Eustis of Harvard University, and traced back to 1659 a complete line of his ancestry to William Eustis. The line was through William (1), William (2), Joseph (3), Joseph (4), William Beers (5), Joseph (6), to William Tracy (7).

His mother, Eleanor St. Barbe Tracy, was the granddaughter of Wyatt St. Barbe, and a great-granddaughter of Colonel Moses Titcomb, famous in Colonial times as the Major of Titcomb's battery, which did such effective service at the siege of Louisbourg, and was the principal means by which the citadel surrendered to the English. On Major Titcomb's return from the siege, he was commissioned Colonel, and in 1755 was killed by the Indians at the battle of Lake George, New York. He was a skilled Indian fighter, and the records show that he had the thorough confidence of the men under him. His loss was a great blow, not only to his troops, but also to the citizens of Newburyport, and a sermon was preached at his funeral on the text "Moses thy servant is dead." Colonel Titcomb was the grandson of William Titcomb, who emigrated to America in 1634.

The great-grandfather of William Tracy Eustis, Wyatt St. Barbe, married Lydia, daughter of John and Lydia (Goodwill) Clough, and one can see to-day in the old Copp's Hill burying-ground the tomb of Thomas Goodwill, her father, who was born in 1687, and died in 1749. Of the ancestry of Wyatt St. Barbe, who was born in 1738, died in 1811, and was buried in St. Paul's Churchyard, Newburyport, it has been traced in a direct line to one Robert deSainte Barbe in Normandy in the dim and distant past. Wyatt was a sea captain, and during the Revolution commanded the brig Betty, and the writer has in his possession a permit issued by the State of Massachusetts Bay, Port of Salem, April 11, 1777, as follows: "Permit the Brig Betty, Wyatt St. Barbe Master Navigator, with seven men to pass the Forts and Guards under your command. To the Commanding Officer or Officers of the several Fortresses and Guards in the Harbour of Salem. (Signed) Warwick Palfray."

In 1784, after the close of the Revolutionary War, Wyatt St. Barbe, as master of the ship Ceres, belonging to Nathaniel Tracy (a cousin of Nichols, Jr., the grandfather of William Tracy Eustis), one of the wealthy men of Newburyport, carried Thomas Jefferson to France, to which country he had lately been appointed as Minister Plenipotentiary; and an interesting account of the voyage is found in Jefferson's Autobiography. In March, 1796, in a letter written to the Newburyport Marine Society, Captain Wyatt St. Barbe tells a most interesting story, how, after succoring a British troop-ship with three hundred men aboard, his vessel was seized and taken to Lisbon, where, after much hardship and trouble, he proved his vessel and cargo to be American, and they were released.

Mr. Eustis had travelled extensively in the United States, and had made one short trip to Europe, and the diaries of his experiences are most interesting. One trip, made in June, 1847, the record of which has been preserved, and gives a detailed account of the primitive means of conveyance in those days, was to New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, thence by rail and stage to Wheeling, West Virginia, thence by steamer down the Ohio, stopping at Cincinnati, Louisville and St. Louis, thence up the Illinois River by steamer to Peru, Illinois, where stage was taken for Chicago; from there by steamer through the lakes to Cleveland and Buffalo, and home by rail.

In 1889 he made a trip with his wife to California and Alaska, and on their return they were caught in the Johnstown flood, but fortunately their train had crossed the Conemaugh River before the bridge was carried away, and he witnessed its destruction from the high land on which the train remained. In this disaster, over five thousand lives were lost, and several towns were swept away.

His most memorable trip was that made in the winter and spring of 1906, when, with some of his children, he visited California, and reached San Francisco on April 16th, being at the St. Francis Hotel at the time of the earthquake. His escape, and the experiences of the party during the week following the earthquake, were most thrilling. In August, 1906, a six hundred mile automobile trip through the White and Green Mountains was thoroughly enjoyed by him.

Mr. Eustis was never so happy as when travelling; enjoying new sights with the zest of a young man, and with a wonderful knowledge of nature. He was always interested in new inventions, a most genial companion, and kept constantly abreast of the times in which he lived.

In 1886 he was elected to membership in the New England Historic Genealogical Society, and was always a zealous worker in its fellowship, serving on important committees, and as a member of its Council, 1893-1898, 1903-1905.

During his trip to Europe, he made an intensive study of the Parish Records, at Bledlow, and it appears certain that he found a record of William (1), as an emigree from Bledlow to the north part of Boston, Massachusetts (Rumney Marsh) at about 1659. (See Vol. I, Item 1., of Prof. Henry Lawrence Eustis) (Also see Vol. Library No. G-EUS-3 of New England Genealogical Society)

COPY OF LETTER RECEIVED JAN. 4, 1971 FROM
MARGARET EUSTIS FINLEY (9)

January 3, 1971

Dear Mr. Eustis:

My cousin, Anita Eustis Worthington, (Mrs. Biddle Worthington) has told us about the book you are getting out (the 2nd edition) about the Eustis family. We were not sure if you had all the names of the children, grand children, and great grand children of my father, William Corcoran Eustis, so I enclose a rather hastily written list. My father and mother had 5 children, but only my youngest sister, Anne, had children who now in turn have children of their own. Anita thought you might like the enclosed pamphlet about Oaklands and I also enclose a reprint from the "Commonwealth" written in April, 1970. My sister and I gave Oatlands to the National Trust in 1965 as a memorial to our parents.

My husband and I live at "Little Oatlands" in the summer and go there every week end. This was part of the Oatlands property. My sister Anne also has a small house on some acreage that also was part of Oatlands.

I wish you could come down some time in the spring or summer to see the place.

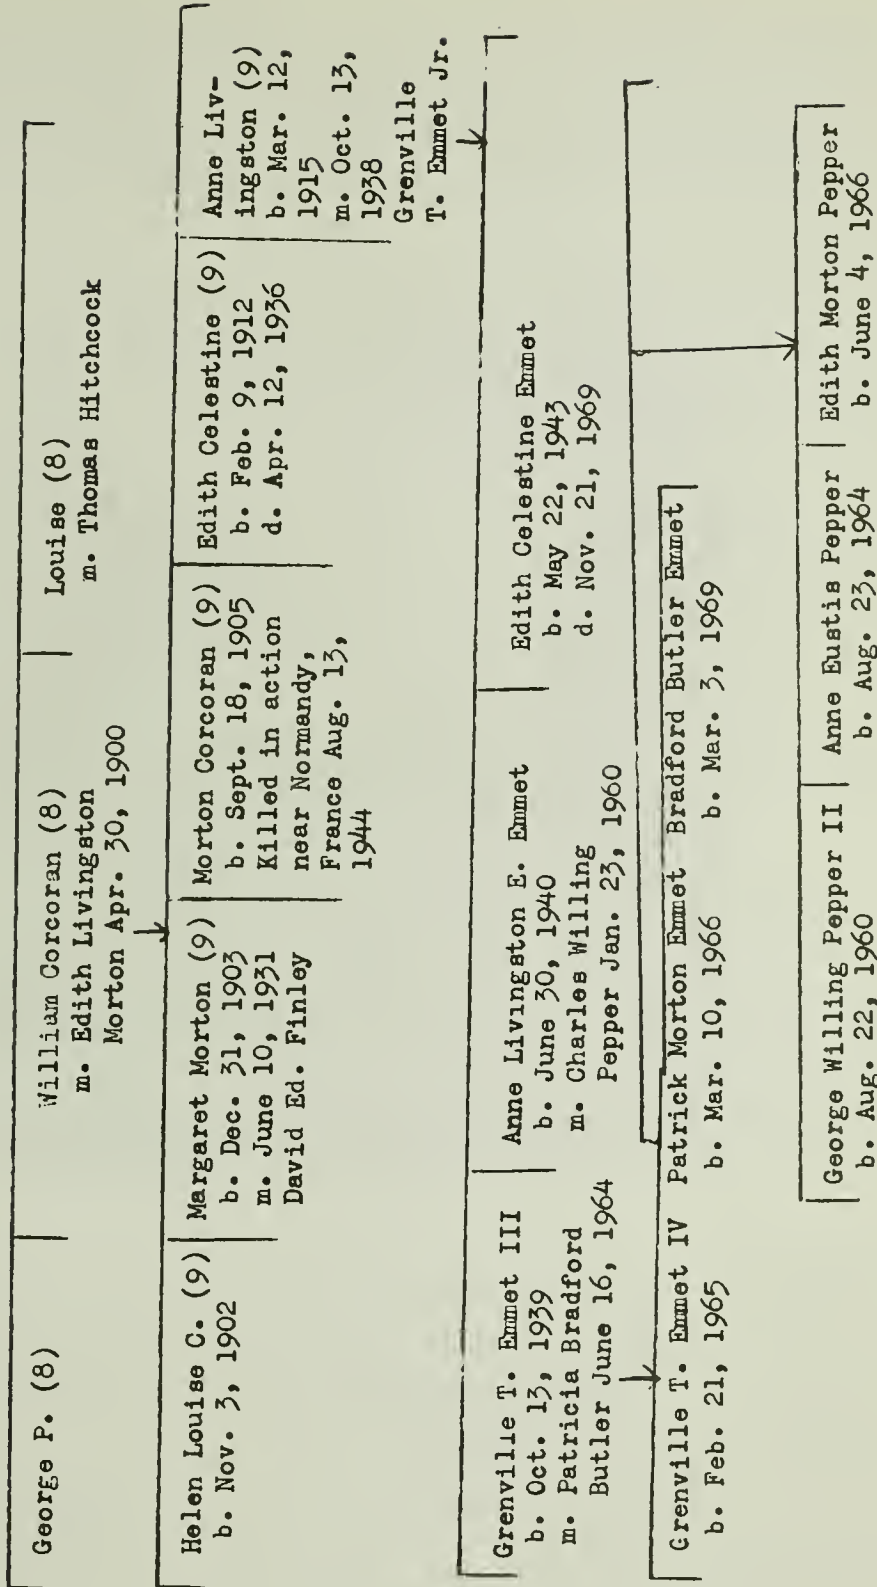

I suppose you have listings of all the Eustis children that were children of my uncle, George Eustis. He married twice and has living children and grand children. Also, of course, my Aunt "Loulie", Mrs. Thomas Hitchcock, has many children, grand children and great grand children.

Let me know if we can help you with any more information. If your book is for sale my sister and I would love to each buy a copy of it. In the meantime, I am rushing this off as Anita Worthington says you will be going to print in 2 weeks.

Sincerely yours,
Margaret Eustis Finley

OATLANDS

Route 15 Leesburg, Virginia

by Act of Congress

Oatlands House and Gardens are the work of the only two owners who ever lived at Oatlands. George Carter, son of Robert "Councillor" Carter of Nomini Hall and great-grandson of Robert "King" Carter of Corotoman, built Oatlands (1800-1803). Mr. and Mrs. Eustis bought Oatlands from the founder of the Washington Post, Stilson Hutchins, who had purchased it from the Carter family in 1894 but had never lived there.

The land on which George Carter built Oatlands consisted of 5,000 acres presented to him as a coming-of-age gift in 1798 by his father, Councillor Carter. Adjacent to a small grist mill on Goose Creek, the tract was part of the councillor's 63,093-acre purchase in 1776 from the estate of Lord Fairfax, proprietor of the Northern Neck of Virginia.

Reputedly, a quirk of fate ended Carter's bachelorhood by sending the widow Betty Lewis to Oatlands' door one morning in 1837 when her carriage broke down on the road to Leesburg. A tour of the garden, a proposal and an acceptance, and the pair were soon wed. At the end of a nine-year marital span, Carter was dead, and his widow and their two sons survived to inherit what an army surgeon, ensconced at Oatlands during the Civil War, described as "one of the most beautiful spots in the Old Dominion." Overspending, the Civil War, the gradual selling off of fine furniture and the eventful taking in of summer boarders went before the end of the Carter occupancy of Oatlands.

William Corcoran Eustis and his wife, Edith Livingston Morton Eustis, had been married three years when they made the first of three horse and buggy trips out from Washington to see the "old Carter place." If they found Oatlands to their liking, they had decided, they would buy it for a residence during the hunting season. The place was for sale, but the mansion was vacant and barred and neglected. The farm lands had long been idle and the gardens were overgrown. But through the surface blight, the splendor that had been and could be again extended its charm, and the Eustises bought Oatlands without ever going inside the mansion.

Restored, Oatlands became the Eustis country home in summer as well as during the hunting season. Their Washington home was first Corcoran House, which Eustis had inherited from his grandfather William Corcoran, donor of the Corcoran Gallery of Art. Then after Corcoran House was sold to become the site for the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, they lived at 1500 Rhode Island Avenue, N. W. This house Mrs. Eustis had inherited from her father, the Honorable Levi Parsons Morton of New York, a member of Congress and Vice President of the United States under Benjamin Harrison (1889-1893).

For Eustis, who had helped found the Loudoun Hunt in 1894, Oatlands spelled the magic of the hunt. For Mrs. Eustis it held the challenge of a garden that became more and more absorbing. Old plantings were conditioned and treasured, formal English box hedges were added and the garden area was extended. Parterres and terraces were designed and a balustrade embellished the south and east sides of the front terrace. Then, where George Carter's bowling green had been until a vegetable garden took its place, appeared that long lovely green corridor known as the boxwood allee.

Since they had a Washington residence, the Eustises planned to restore Oatlands to full beauty and splendor to use as a country place, a place to stable Eustis' famous horses and a place for the hunt. From the time of his death in 1921 until her own in 1964, however, Mrs. Eustis spent more and more time there, perfecting the gardens and involving herself in welfare work. In 1965 her daughters, Mrs. David E. Finley and Mrs. Eustis Emmet, who inherited the property, gave Oatlands House, furnishings, gardens and 261 acres of surrounding land, with an endowment for preservation and maintenance, to the National Trust for Historic Preservation as a memorial to their parents. Oatlands will never have to worry about threats to its natural setting or atmosphere. Through their grant (authorized by the 1966 Virginia General Assembly's Open Space Land Act) of scenic easements to 237 acres adjoining and 15 acres across from the estate, Mr. and Mrs. Finley and Mrs. Emmet, who own country homes on properties adjacent to Oatlands, have made sure of the future. The Finleys own "Little Oatlands", and Mrs. Emmet owns "Oatlands Hamlet."

LAWMAKERS PURSUES OWN INQUIRY ON SAILOR'S ATTEMPT TO DEFECT

Coast Guard Winds Up Its Investigation Allowing
"Early Retirement" for Officers

Monday, Dec. 28, 1970

The Coast Guard closed its books on the Simas Kudirka incident last week, in effect sacking the two senior officers who gave the order to return a Lithuanian sailor to a Russian fishing ship after he jumped aboard a Coast Guard cutter off Cape Cod seeking asylum.

But the case was not quite finished. Rep. Wayne L. Hays of Ohio, chairman of a House Foreign Affairs subcommittee looking into the incident, asked that the two officers be ordered to testify to his subcommittee.

The officers, Rear Adm. William B. Ellis and Capt. Fletcher W. Brown, were told they would be allowed to retire early rather than face a court-martial. Admiral Ellis is the commander of the Boston Coast Guard District, and Captain Brown is his chief of staff. Comdr. Ralph W. Eustis, skipper of the cutter Vigilant, was reprimanded and reassigned to a Coast Guard base in New York.

Transportation Secretary John Volpe, whose department administers Coast Guard affairs, released a 1,000 page transcript of an inquiry that sets out the events of the Nov. 23 incident. In the Coast Guard report, the responsibility for issuing the order to return Kudirka to the trawler Sovetskaya Litva is assigned to Captain Brown, who was receiving advice from Admiral Ellis from the Admiral's home, where he was ill.

This order was given first at 6:54 p.m., more than two hours after Kudirka jumped aboard the ship. Commander Eustis was told to hand Kudirka back if the Russians asked for him.

But more ship-to-shore telephone calls followed, with Commander Eustis' plea that he was afraid the Russians would hurt Kudirka. To this, according to the report, Admiral Ellis replied: "I don't think that will happen. They are not barbarians."

At 8 p.m., the Russians presented a formal written request to Commander Eustis to return the defector, charging that Kudirka had stolen money from the stateroom of the Russian captain.

At 8:19 p.m., Commander Eustis talked with Captain Brown once again, telling him that he had received the Russian demand. Captain Brown ordered him again to turn the sailor over to the Russians.

On board the cutter Vigilant, Commander Eustis failed in his attempts to talk Kudirka into giving up to the Russians peacefully. By 9:30 p.m., the Russians were equally unsuccessful. And at 10:14 p.m., Commander Eustis telephoned Captain Brown to tell him that the situation on board the Vigilant had grown tense. At this point, Kudirka's fate was sealed. Says the Coast Guard report:

"Captain Brown said: "You have your orders. You have no discretion. Use whatever force is necessary. Do not let any incident occur."

Reluctantly, and near tears, Commander Eustis told the Russians that they could take Kudirka. At 10:45 p.m. Commander Eustis escorted the Russians to Kudirka, who asked for a knife to kill himself rather than be taken. In harrowing detail, the report tells what happened next:

"The Soviet party started with Kudirka down the ladder from the watchstander's head, on the O2 deck, to the O1 deck, where the captain's cabin was located. . . . Kudirka was resisting strenuously. When they reached the bottom of the ladder, Kudirka broke away, ran across the passageway, and attempted to enter Commander Eustis' cabin. Kudirka managed to open the cabin door before he was grabbed by the Soviets who tried to break the grip he had on the cabin door knob. . . .

"Once on the port deck, Kudirka broke loose from the Soviet party again, and made his way underneath the port-motor lifeboat, where the struggle continued. Kudirka then went over the side of the port-boat deck, apparently going overboard. Actually he swung from the O1 deck to the main deck.

"Man Overboard" was sounded throughout the ship.

"While this was taking place, a great number of Soviet crewmen had gathered at the rail of the Soviet ship. As they followed the struggle a few feet away aboard the Vigilant, they screamed, yelled, and pointed, creating a substantial commotion. The Soviet crew saw that Kudirka had not gone overboard and they tried to point him out to his pursuers.

"It was 11 p.m. The two ships were moored about three feet apart. Thinking that the man might be crushed between the ships, and recognizing the potential for trouble in this heated situation, Commander Eustis ordered Vigilant to break away and to get under way immediately.

"Since the mooring lines were aboard the Soviet vessel, all but two lines were let go by their bitter ends. Two other lines were cut with axes. During the unmooring, Commander Eustis had the conn (ship control). In backing straight down and standing clear of the Soviet vessel, the Soviets' yard boom net knocked down the Vigilant's antennae, carried away forward port life lines, a port running light, and damaged three of four stanchions.

"Kudirka swung from the port-boat deck to the main deck and ran down the port airstair into the fantail. . . . "

It was at this point that Kudirka tried to jump overboard and was restrained by a Coast Guardsman. The fight raged on. At 11:15 p.m. it was all over. The Russians trussed Kudirka in a blanket.

"Commander Eustis went to the boat deck where Kudirka had been taken, bound in the blanket, and attempted to express to Kudirka his sympathy and personal concern. Although Kudirka said nothing, Commander Eustis felt that he had been understood. . . ."

Crewmen from the Vigilant rowed the Russians and their prize back to the Sovetskaya Litva. The Soviets lowered their net to the boat. Concludes this portion of the Coast Guard report:

"The Soviet crewmen threw Kudirka on the engine hatch. From there he was thrown into the net. The other Soviets climbed on top of him and they were all raised to the deck of the Soviet ship. From that time on, it was impossible for the boat crew to observe what was happening to Kudirka on the deck of the Soviet ship."

*The Coast Guard in Washington said the skipper of Vigilant, Cmdr. Ralph W. Eustis, who was the man in command on the scene, will become executive officer of the Coast Guard base in New York.

COPY OF LETTER FROM MRS. ALVIN EUSTIS SR.

Berkeley, Calif.
Jan. 31, 1970

Mr. Warner Eustis
260 Franklin Street
Newton, Mass.

Dear Mr. Eustis :

Your recent letter was just received, also the November 13th one. When your first inquiries arrived my husband was not too well and really wasn't too interested in looking back, so everything was turned over to Alvin Jr. and his wife. His wife, Helen Sarah (Sally) was sufficiently interested to go ahead.

Now, Alvin Jr. was born when we were living in Republic, Washington, very close to the Canadian Border. This was in 1917. Our very excellent doctor went into the service leaving only two old doctors who had long ceased to practice. Fearing his replacement would not arrive in time I went to my mother in Coeur D'Alene, Idaho where Alvin Jr. was born and returned one month later to Republic, Wash. so that was the extent of his sojourn in Cd'A.

When Alvin Jr. was two, in 1919, we moved to Pullman, Wash. for one year. In 1920 we moved to Cheney where my husband was athletic director in Eastern Washington State College for seven years. Since then we have lived in the Bay Area, always near San Francisco.

Wm. Henry, our second boy, was born while we were in Cheney, Washington. As it seemed best to return to my former doctor in Coeur D'Alene. I married Alvin A. Senior in Coeur D'Alene August 1, 1916. Wm. Henry lives in Yakima Washington, teaches Chemistry and Mathematics at Yakima Valley College.

Now about George Henry Eustis (my husband's father). When he was born I understand his mother died. Two Eustis women who lived in the Octagon House took him. Later when his father wanted him back they refused to give him up and so raised him in the old house. He lived there until after he married. He apparently was never adopted legally and apparently never claimed any inheritance of the family. He was a very fine man, had a beautiful voice and 'twas from him my husband got much of his sweetness. I am under the impression that my husband's sister was born in the Octagon House.

We have been very distraught here for several months. In June we bought a summer home on Curlew Lake near Republic, Washington. We were busy packing and disposing of things when my husband had two falls ten days apart, but we suspected nothing serious after xrays, examinations, etc. We were at the lake just five weeks, when after several visits to the doctor there we rushed him back to the Bay Area for expert Medical Advice. He spent four months in hospitals and nursing homes. His trouble was diagnosed as arterioschleratic heart disease. During the four months he had pneumonia twice, the last of which he did not survive and so passed away on January 17, 1970.

I shall go back to Curlew Lake in April if you wish to inquire further, address - Republic, Washington, Rt. 1, 99166.

And so you see, there is really no mystery or skeleton. At the time of George Henry's birth children were often raised by other families, using the name, etc. I remember my grandmother in Iowa did just this and my own mother partially raised a boy in the same manner. And so, George Henry was not truly a Eustis. I often heard him speak of the Octagon House. All this information we gradually got together after your first inquiries. It took a little doing.

Sincerely yours,
Blanche Eustis (Mrs. A.A.Sr.)

My legal address is still 945 Euclid Ave., Berkeley, Cal. 94708

COMMENTS BY WARNER EUSTIS 1970

After reading Mrs. Alvin Allen Eustis Sr. letter of Jan. 31, 1970 from the widow of Alvin Allen Eustis Sr. (T-24) (reproduced herein) that this Eustis group are not descended from William (5) and William (6) item No. 29 and item No. 50 of Prof. Henry Lawrence Eustis thru William (7) who left home at the Octagon House in Lake Mills, Jefferson County, Wisconsin, near Fort Atkinson in the town of Oakland, Wisconsin.

The boy, George Henry Eustis, father of Alvin Allen Eustis Sr., was raised says Mrs. Eustis by "a Eustis woman" at the Octagon House, Lake Mills. Since William (7) bequeathed his belongings to his sister, Frances (7) (Mrs. Bond) it would be reasonable to believe that George was a son of William (7) Item V-5. The statement by Mrs. Alvin Eustis Sr. that her husband's father never claimed any inheritance may only indicate that he appreciated the home provided by Frances Eustis Bond, and, perhaps, in State of Wisconsin the law could not provide any right of inheritance in absence of provisions in Frances Eustis Bond's will (if any) to the child of her brother as against her own husband and six children.

Mrs. Alvin Allen Eustis Sr.'s comment in her letter of Jan. 31, 1970 to the effect that George Henry was not "adopted legally" seems to me to offer no confirmation to her thought that he was not actually a Eustis, but simply adopted the name. It seems to me that the motive for raising the boy arose from the fact that he was the son of William (7), brother of Frances Bond and Elizabeth Eustis Hart.

Thus, I feel it is very probable that Prof. Alvin Allen Eustis is a descendant of William (6) and William (7) - Items 29 and 50 of Prof. Henry Lawrence Eustis.

Although it produces considerable repetition, now that I am preparing Vol. II of my Genealogy of the Eustis Families, it appears to me that I should reproduce, verbatim herein, the correspondence from Mrs. Alvin Allen Eustis Sr. and also the article, believed by me to have been written by R. B. Hart (son of Elizabeth Eustis (Barger) Hart (7), Item V-2, which article appeared in the Cumberland Advocate (probably of Cumberland, Wisconsin) July 14, 1932.

This may be helpful to future genealogists wishing to verify or expand my findings.

COPY OF CUMBERLAND ADVOCATE, July 14, 1932

One of the pleasant incidents of a recent visit to the home of my boyhood in Jefferson county was the opportunity I had to again inspect the interior of the octagonal stone house, built by my grandfather, William Eustis, which was the scene of many pleasureable events of my boyhood days.

The visit was particularly interesting because I had not been on the premises since it passed out of the possession of the Eustis family forty years or so ago. Very fortunately, Mrs. Arthur Gafke, wife of the present owner, happened to call at the Perry home one evening when I was there. When I expressed the desire to look at the old house, Mrs. Gafke extended a most cordial invitation to do so. Perhaps her readiness for the inspection was influenced somewhat by her pride in the place on which so many improvements have been made during the two years in which she has been its mistress. She seemed anxious also to obtain some definite historical information concerning the house and the family which built it, for, she told us, she and her husband had searched Indiana, Illinois and Wisconsin for a landmark out of which to make a modern rural home, with the result that this place was finally chosen.

I wanted to make the visit something of an event, so I invited all of the relatives in that neighborhood to accompany me and who had ever lived or been frequent visitors in it during the Eustis regime, which included my sister, Mrs. Ina Hart Perry, my nephew, Frank L. Eustis and his wife, my niece, Mrs. Allie Eustis Mack, and her husband Frank, and my second cousin, Mrs. Ella Winslow Goodrich.

This quite spectacular house is situated on Highway 18 about six miles west of Jefferson in the town of Oakland. The accompanying picture was taken many years ago and shows the place just as I remember it.

The highway runs through the middle of a quarter section which grandfather purchased when he came to Wisconsin in 1846. The land is practically level except for a small pond in the northwest corner in which water still stands. When he bought it, it was covered with hardwood timber, large trees with no underbrush - oak openings, as it was called. One of my early recollections is the immense number of stumps on part of the northwest forty, evidence of the work involved in clearing the land. The house stood on a very slight elevation on the north side of the road in the center of the northeast forty, which so long as grandfather lived, was left in a state of nature except for five acres or so of clearing in the southwest corner. The woods came within a few rods of the house and surrounded the barn on the north and east.

On the south side of the highway, when I can first remember, was an orchard extending clear across the forty and covering five acres or more. In it there were trees of many varieties from early summer apples to those which were still good the next June. Among them were many varieties which I have never seen elsewhere. In the fall we children had the time of our lives prowling in this orchard and sampling the fruit. There were cooking apples so sour that they set ones teeth on edge, but still with a delicious flavor; there were sweet apples of many varieties, there were some pond pippins, and a variety we called the "pear apple" from the similarity of the taste to that fruit.

So far as I remember, no commercial use was ever made of the fruit, but the fruit cellar was filled every year with a hundred bushels or more and I could eat my fill every time I went there, which was a real treat as our own orchard had not then come into bearing.

Grandfather was one of the original stockholders in the First National Bank at Ft. Atkinson, of which he served as director, and he retained his stock until his death. He also served as treasurer of the Jefferson County Agricultural Society.

Shortly after the completion of the Union and Central Pacific Railways, grandfather visited his daughter in California and was perhaps the first person in that part of the state to make such a trip. From Omaha he traveled in an emigrant car attached to a freight train. The passengers carried their own bedding and cooked their own meals. It took a week to make the trip. Going up the mountains the train proceeded so slowly that passengers could pick flowers along the right of way. He brought back as gifts for the family many curios of Chinese origin, which included a number of inlaid work boxes. I can well remember the excitement rampant the night he called in the family and distributed the gifts.

Grandfather was a Republican in politics after the formation of that party. He was an ardent Union man during the civil war, and assisted in the erection of a "Liberty Pole" on the school grounds, which was still standing when I entered school. It was a tamarack 40 feet long at least. However, he hired a substitute for his son, at the urgent insistence of his wife, as rumor came to me. If he were alive today he would doubtless be a militant prohibitionist. The Wisconsin Chief, a weekly temperance paper, established at Ft. Atkinson in 1849, published the following article shortly after his death in April, 1881:

The late Mr. Eustis joined the Ft. Atkinson Lodge of Good Templars in 1858. In 1859 the members from Oakland withdrew and organized a lodge of their own in town. He was a firm supporter of the order and very active in lodge and convention work, so long as health permitted. In Jan., 1868, an essay of his on the "order of Good Templars" (read at a session of the county convention held at Lake Mills) was published in the Chief, and the convention circulated 1,000 extra copies in the county.

As I remember grandfather, he was not only a teetotaler but he did not use tobacco, tea or coffee, and I never heard him use vulgar or profane language. But he had not always been so abstemious. Legend has it that one day he drove to Lake Mills, stopping an acquaintance on the way to borrow some chewing tobacco. At a home where he visited he chanced to pick up a pamphlet describing the evils resulting from the use of those articles, which made such an impression on his mind that he immediately stopped their use. But he did buy some tobacco to return what he had borrowed. A cup of hot water with a little milk in it became his table

Grandfather took an active interest in local affairs, held various town offices and served one term as member of assembly. According to reports, he was for years town clerk. His activities in this office may be judged from an excerpt from an article "Old Eustis Place" by Mrs. Lillian Stair Schriener of Ft. Atkinson, which appeared years ago in a Milwaukee paper. She wrote:

For many years William Eustis held the office of town clerk, and to him the country school ma'ams were obliged to come for their examinations. These latter were all oral and much dreaded by the teachers owing to the queer and puzzling questions asked by the kindly but excentric examiner. Many a tale might the walls of the old house tell of more than one trembling miss as she passed the hospitable doorway, flanked on either side by the rows of colonial windows, to the dreaded ordeal within.

Of course this phase of school government antedates my recollection. County superintendents were already in vogue when my school days began. My first recollection of such an official was a visit to our school by Samuel A. Craig. The fact that he was blind in one eye perhaps impressed this visit on my mind. From my acquaintance with grandfather I would wager dollars to doughnuts that he acquired in the oral examinations a more comprehensive knowledge of the mental ability of the applicant than did many of the early superintendents with written examinations.

It is also said that grandfather had a penchant for auctions, and was quite inclined to bid on anything which looked cheap, quite regardless of whether he had any use for it or not, especially what Bill Jeffery would call "job lots". One time when he had brought home a mess of this kind, his wife sarcastically remarked "So you have brought home some stuff to put in the cellar." Perhaps this trait was due to his yankee blood. The same trait is in my blood, so much so that after considerable experience I cut out auctions entirely, just as grandfather did to tobacco. He disliked to discard anything. I was told that at one time he had a room in the cellar full of newspapers which finally caught fire and nearly burned down the house.

I think grandfather must have been rather austere in his old age - at least he never took any such interest in me or in any of his other grandchildren as I do in mine. I have no recollection of his ever playing with us or attempting to amuse us. My most vivid recollection of him riding in his top buggy behind "Old Jim" a gray horse, well advanced in years, which he used quite frequently in trips to market and about the country. Jim, under grandfather's guidance, had developed a jog trot which was just faster than a walk and he disliked very much to vary that pace, although he could step quite lively when Frank drove him after grandfather's death.

Perhaps his austerity was due somewhat to an accident he had when he was 70 years of age. The family spent New Years at our house. They came in a sled on which there was room to stand behind the seat. The seat was full and he started to drive home standing up, but the horse started suddenly and he fell backward, striking his head on the ice and causing concussion of the brain. His life hung in the balance for days. He finally recovered, but with physical activity quite evidently diminished.

The question is often asked, "Why did William Eustis build such a house?" but the echo answers "Why?" His children have all followed him to the better land, and it never occurred to any of his grandchildren who were so familiar with the house that it was peculiar. I have tried to give something of a picture of the man who built it, with the idea that it might afford some clue to the answer.

Rich:

More about the Eustis affair: The story is that a Welsh woman working in the home of a Spanish titled family (wouldn't be much fun, if they weren't titled) captivated one of the sons by prudent employment of her many charms (no doubt being Welsh she sang beautifully). Well, the family got mad and threw the son out. He and his bride, a Miss Thomas, we are told, went to Cornwall, England. This chaps' name is supposed to have been Eustis - the Spanish equivalent - if any or a derivation of same. He and his wife or one of their male progeny settled in Wales (time unknown) and became "Quakers." Can't learn anything definite re names before your great grandfather whose name was Richard and married Miss Thomas - christian name Ann. I believe their children were in this order Elizabeth, John, Daniel, Margaret, Gabriel, Richard, Mercy Ann, Samuel, Hanna. Your grandfather Richard and his brother Gabriel came to Ontario, Canada I am certain between 1890 and 1898 to join their father who was supervising the installation of mining machinery manufactured by the firm he worked for in Wales. He returned to Wales, the boys stayed. Russell's 2nd name is Gaundry. We have a cousin - the son of Marcy Ann - who was born in this country and raised mostly in Vancouver whose name is Gaundry. His sister from whom I got all this info tells me the name is Spanish. When and if you locate or find out where a copy of Mr. Eustis' book can be purchased please let me know.

Vaugie lives in Whittier but Phyllis (our informant) says she can't add anything to this.

Fell in love with Festus - not Festus but his rhythm singing self - sons of the pioneers - he really has a nice face hasn't he? On the Merv Griffin show the other night the Glen Campbell "crowd" were praised by Shecky Green.

Love and kisses to all

COPY OF LETTER TO ROBERT ELLIS EUSTIS

April 7, 1970

Mr. Robert Ellis Eustis
733 Cuenoa Way
Fremont, California 94536

Dear Mr. Eustis:

On July 28, 1969, from my summer home in Maine, I acknowledged receipt of your communication about your genealogical history with appreciation for its clearness and apparent authenticity, which is of basic importance to a genealogist.

You were unable to tell much about your grandfather but said he was born in Bangor, Maine. I took a day last summer and went to Bangor. It was a hard day. I searched the Bangor Records diligently, back to the founding of the State of Maine about 1810, including various church records of Rev. Harvey Loomis 1821 to 1832 and licensing records. I did not find the birth record of James F. Eustis or anything about him.

I found in the marriage records that a Miss Lydia Eustis listed from Prospect, Maine married a Joseph Mills of Bangor on March 31, 1833 and I know from the compilation of Prof. Henry Lawrence Eustis of Harvard that there were various people in Prospect, Maine by the name of Eustis. (See Prof. H.L. Eustis compilation in my book)

I also found that Solon Eustis of Bangor, Maine married Ezra Pat-ten February 15, 1835. (See Item 40, page 214, Prof. Eustis) He mentions here Solon Eustis as the seventh child of Thomas (5) Eustis and his wife, Hanna Graham of Malden, but says he died without issue on January, 1871.

I also found in the Bangor record the birth records of two children to Joseph Eustis (5) and Triphosa French. (See compilation of Prof. Eustis Item 46, page 216) There were nine children by this marriage but only Martha T. and Joseph showed on my search of Bangor records as having been born there. Joseph died in New Orleans unmarried, so it appears you can't be descended from Joseph and Triphosa French Eustis.

Prof. Henry L. Eustis shows on page 210, item 24, that Joseph, above, had four brothers as follows:

James (5) married Octavia French of Prospect, Maine and they had a son James Everett French Eustis and you can follow that man down in my book to Stanton Russell listed as G-2. Stanton died January 24, 1970. I knew him personally, as he lived in Wellesley, Mass. for many years and had a large insurance business in Boston, Mass.

Leonard Eustis (5) (Item 47 Prof. Eustis) had a son Leonard (6) (see item 70, page 221) who married Annie Bolton at Portland, Maine, June 24, 1872. They had one child Leonard (7) born April 26, 1873 and died the same year so that family fades out.

My next effort was to search the vital statistics at Everett, Mass., which I previously searched once before, a year ago. Your father, Charles Benten Eustis, is not recorded in the births at Everett, Mass. The school record shows his name as a student in Everett with the correct birth date as given by you but no parents or guardian or other information appears, so I was stopped in my hope to get a confirmation of your grandfather and grandmother, James F. Eustis and Lottie Pray. (see Ann Pratt, wife of James E. French Eustis, item 68, page 221)

I then searched the records at Mass. State House, which are supposed to have everyone born in Massachusetts. Your father, Charles Benten Eustis, appears not to have been born in Everett nor in Massachusetts, although he went to school for an unknown period in Everett, Mass. I searched five years back and front of birth date you gave, July 10, 1888, in the state records.

In passing, I would report that the Mass. records show Carl Eustis born in Chelsea, Mass. November 15, 1888 to Thomas F. Eustis and Ada R. They lived at Spencer Avenue, Chelsea, Mass.

It should be noted that Prof. Eustis compilation was published in 1878 so neither this man is included nor Charles Benton Eustis. Carl is a surprise to me.

I enclose, herewith, a book beginning with a complete reproduction of Prof. Henry Lawrence Eustis' heroic compilation followed by my own work intermeshing with Prof. Eustis' book and running up to 1968. I asked in my book for corrections and additions. Gracious members of the Eustis name have provided a few corrections and considerable new material, which I am about to publish.

I have searched every telephone book in the United States (Telephone Library, Boston) and know something definite about almost every Eustis now in the United States.

Your group and that of Prof. Alvin Allen Eustis at 945 Euclid Avenue, Berkeley, California 94708 are members of my own family tree, I truly believe, but I am going to have to classify you as unidentified persons if I don't have some luck or help. I am sure your family comes from around Bangor or Prospect or Dixfield, but I can find no link except that I am interested in James F., which suggests that it comes from some wife such as, Triphonia French (Item 46) or Octavia French (Item 43). Also, notice Augusta Marie (Item 44) married William French.

Perhaps you will study the book which I have enclosed. Perhaps you will have some thoughts, but study it soon and reply soon. I am stopping my work early this spring.

Sincerely,
Warner Eustis (9) age 75
See family A, Item A-9

P.S. (9) means ninth generation family traced back to William (1) Rumney Marsh, Boston 1659, which I am sure is correct as it correlates with English Parish Records, Bledlow, Buckinghamshire, England year 1650 (approx.)

DESCENDANTS OF WM. EUSTIS (6)

Continuation of Item #50 in the compilation of Prof. Henry Lawrence Eustis, recopied from the appendix in Vol. I, with corrections regarding Elizabeth (7) in paragraph directly following:

As a result of corresponding with Mrs. Alvin Allen Eustis, who at this date August 15, 1968, resides with her husband at 945 Euclid Avenue, Berkeley, California 94708, I have obtained certain interesting information, which I think is correct about William Eustis (6), who is recorded by Item #50 in the compilation of Prof. Henry Lawrence Eustis appearing in the front of this book. This information, she hoped, might establish the identity of her husband, Alvin Allen Eustis, but I have not yet seen that it does, although for reasons that are not clearly established he thinks his grandfather was the above William (6). However, I have not seen the connection. There is an Alvin DeMerit, who married a Mary Eustis (7), whom I believe to be the daughter of William (6) by his second wife.

Restatement Correction: "Mrs. Henry C. Allen is the daughter of Elizabeth Eustis (7) (Barger) (Hart). It was Mrs. Allen who married three times."

Thus, although the names Alvin and Allen do appear in the descendants of William (6), there is no definite connection to Alvin Allen Eustis in California, whom I am thus obliged to put under my heading T, which covers persons of unknown origin. I hope Alvin Allen Eustis will later be able to find the definite connection, but I cannot wait longer before publication.

Item V-1 William Eustis (6) -(See Item #50 of Prof. H. L. Eustis) William (5), John (4), William (3), William (2), William (1) b. May 4, 1799; d. Apr. 23, 1881 at Ft. Atkinson; int. North Oakland cemetery; said to have lived at Lake Mills, Jefferson Co., Wisconsin and Fort Atkinson, Wisconsin.

Subsequent to printing this compilation, but before binding the same, I received a letter from Helen S. Eustis (Mrs. Alvin A. Eustis Jr.) of 945 Euclid Avenue, Berkeley, California 94706 enclosing therewith a photographic copy of an article from the Cumberland Advocate (Wisconsin) dated July 14, 1932 perporiting to have been prepared by, or the result of an interview, with a grandchild of William Eustis (6). The following facts have been extracted from this newspaper article. I believe the author is R.B. Hart.

The article in Cumberland Advocate of July 14, 1932 describes "William" (who as small with black hair, later white, blue eyes and prominent nose) as born in Newburyport on March 4, 1799; served as a clerk for three years; set himself up in business at Eastport, Maine and evidently prospered. He married April 26, 1823 to Frances Winslow, who bore him four children:

- 1.) William (7) - went to California in 1849
- 2.) Elizabeth (7) - mother of person providing this information - married John Barger and had four children.
- 3.) Frances (7) b. Dec. 19, 1823; went to California; m. August Bond; there were six children.
- 4.) Andrew (7) went to California in 1852.

He acquired tuberculosis and believing her health would be improved he sold his Eastport business in 1853, planning to emigrate to Illinois, but Mrs. Frances Winslow Eustis died before the move could be made.

With his four children he crossed the Alleghany Mts., floated down the Ohio and travelled up the Mississippi and Illinois Rivers, settling near Springfield, Illinois, not far from present Loami. Here he built a house. In 1840 he married Martha Sowell, who bore him three children:

- 1.) Charles (7) b. Sept. 12, 1842 in Auburn, Illinois, Sangamon County
- 2.) Jane (7)
- 3.) Mary (7)

It is stated that he suffered from the default of his contract covering sale of his Eastport property and went thru bankruptcy in the panic of 1837.

In Illinois William Eustis (6) suffered from malaria and he moved to Wisconsin in 1846. He built a house for his daughter, the widow of John Barger, near his own home. He was a Unitarian whom it was said took particular care in finding jobs to do on Sunday morning. He was a constant reader but only attended common schools. He was an original stockholder and director of the First National Bank of Fort Atkinson, Wisconsin. His politics were Republican and ardent supporter of Lincoln. He was never profane, used chewing tobacco, but did not smoke or use coffee, tea or alcohol. He was a very active public spirited citizen of Fort Atkinson - town clerk many years and very active in support of schools.

This article states that as of July 14, 1932 only two descendants of William (6) survive who have the name of Eustis; namely Frank L. Eustis (8) and his son Lawrence Uglow Eustis (9).

Item V-2 Elizabeth Eustis (7) - (William (6), William (5), John (4), William (3), William (2), William (1) was b. Dec. 17, 1823; m. June 4, 1843 to John Barger in Sangamon Co., Illinois; children were:

Andrew kept a store at Matheneys Creek, Cal. for a man named Smith; said he heard nothing of William (7) but had heard from Aunt Donners children (see William (5) children); Litha Donner at school and is a widow; Leana Donner married 3 weeks prior to letter and Frances Donner living with a Mr. Reed - not a good home. Two younger children with a Dutch family. Frances (7) wrote about him to Elizabeth (7) Hart Jan. 31, 1864 from Elk Grove, Cal.

"Well, William has made us a visit after an absence of 4 years. He appeared to me like one from the dead one Sunday morning about the middle of Oct. I received one letter from him about 6 months after he left here, and never heard from him again until he stood right in the door. He spent two weeks with us. He came to San Francisco to buy goods. He has made a good deal of money trading in Sarrona. He had $3,000 to buy goods with. He left here the 3rd of Nov. I received a letter from him dated Dec. 9. He was to start that day per steamer to Los Angeles. From thence across the country by land to Sarrona. I am quite anxious to hear from him. He was in excellent spirits when here - talked a great deal of the folks at home. I wanted him to write to you or father. He thought he would, then he said he wouldn't; that he had never received one word from any of you and he would not be the one to write first, but if you write to him he would answer. His P. Office is Tucson, Arizona Territory. Do write to him. He feels as though he had been neglected and shed tears when speaking of you." William Eustis (7) is reported to have finally settled in Tucson, Arizona. He is supposed to have married a Spanish woman and to have had a family, but when he died he willed his property to his sister Frances (7) (Mrs. August Bond).

James Eustis - Who is he? - Reported at Westchester County, N.Y.
1665 (see French-Gazetteer of New York 1860, page 700, covering Westchester County, N.Y.), says about Fleetville and Jacksonville: "This town appears to have been a favorite residence of the natives; and when first settled by the whites it contained traces of former occupation. The Indian title was acquired in 1654 and confirmed in 1654, 1666 and 1700.
Thomas Pell, the purchaser, granted it to James Eustis and Philip Pinkney, of Fairfield, Conn., and their associates. In 1665, 26 persons signed a covenant for the security of their mutual rights. (1 and 2) The settlers were incorporated by patent,
March 9, 1666, and for many years were engaged in a controversy with Westchester concerning the bounds of their grant."

1. Thomas and Richard Shute, Nathaniel and John Tompkins, Thomas and John A. Pinkney, Joseph Joans, John and Moses Hoitt, James Eustis, Daniel Godwin, Wm. Squire, David Osburn, John Goding, Samuel and John Drake, John and Moses Jackson, Nathaniel White, Wm. Haldon, John Gay, Richard Hoadley, Henry Fowler, John Emory, and John Clarke were the signers of this agreement.
2. Philip Pinkney, James Eustis, and Wm. Haldon were named in this patent; and these persons resigned their trust to the inhabitants soon after.

The 5th edition of Handy Book for Genealogists, published by Everton Publishers Inc., 526 North Main, Logan, Utah 84321 (which is an invaluable reference book listing basic genealogical source material, books and libraries in all States of U. S. and many other countries) says that the original settlers of Fairfield, Conn. and surroundings largely came from the present area of Cambridge, Watertown, Newton and Dorchester, Mass. They spread out from Fairfield County, Conn. into Westchester County, N.Y. It is possible that this James Eustis went to Connecticut from the Boston area. He is a contemporary of William (1), the common ancestor of the family investigated by Henry Lawrence Eustis and later by Warner Eustis in his book "The Eustis Families of U. S. 1657-1968." This author believes there have been a number of people having the name of Eustis who have drifted in and out of Suffolk County, Mass. and Marblehead, Mass., as well as other places, who have not been found or adequately reported and have died or drifted away.

A future Eustis Genealogist could find the Fairfield County and Westchester County areas very productive. Also, there remains unsolved the identity of an alleged settler, named James Eustis, who is said to have settled in Virginia in 1635.

by Warner Eustis (9) - Item A-9

I went to Dixfield, Maine with Albert Mason Eustis (8) (Item B-11) from Auburn, Maine and met, there, his brother William Eustis (8) (Item B-9) of High Street, Auburn, Maine. It rained hard all day. During the day we went to so called Eustis, Main Street Cemetery, a small beautiful spot on the north side of town of Dixfield, Maine.

We found a row of probable Eustis graves with most all the stones down, except one. We found the following:

1. Cyprus Eustis
died Aug. 31, 1859 - age 55
(See Item 40 of Henry Lawrence Eustis' compilation.) He was sixth child of Thomas Eustis (5). brother of Joseph (5), Item 38. Cyprus died unmarried. He was born Dec. 25, 1805 at Dixfield, Maine.
2. We found a stone for Sarah, wife of Joseph Eustis (5) (See Item 38, listed by Prof. H.L. Eustis) He says she was born May 23, 1767 and died May 11, 1845.
3. We found a stone for Joseph C. Eustis, whom we believe is Joseph (Chamberlain) Eustis (5). (See Item 38 of Prof. H.L. Eustis) The stone says died Dec. 20, 1847. Joseph is the Eustis, who with his brother, founded Mexico, Maine, adjacent to Dixfield. (See article in appendix, Vol. I, from Newspaper about founding of Mexico, Maine by Thomas Eustis (5) (See Item 40) and Joseph Eustis (5) (See Item 38) of compilation of Prof. Henry Lawrence Eustis at beginning of Vol. I, by Warner Eustis.
4. We found a stone marked: Elizabeth Eustis daughter of
Joseph and Sarah
(dates obliterated)
died age 71 yrs.
Stone says "daughter of Joseph and Sarah, age 71 years."
We take this to be Elizabeth Mason Eustis (Item 38) of Prof. H. L. Eustis, and that she was born June 30, 1806.
5. Stone marked; ? M. Eustis (stone very obscure)
 b. 1834 ?
 d. 189?
We believe this to be either John Mason Eustis (5) or George E. Eustis (6) (See Item 64) by Prof. Henry L. Eustis.
6. Found a stone: John C. (Chamberlain) Eustis died May 25, 1852
 age 68 yrs. - 6 mos.

This believed to be Item 41 by Prof. H. L. Eustis. If so he was born Nov. 17, 1784, plus 68 years in 1852.

Other stones were lost or not present.

Mrs. Rachael S. Kidder (October 23, 1970), who is Librarian at Ludden Library at Dixfield, Maine and genealogist, with many records, had an old list of the Eustis family members buried in Eustis, Main Street Cemetery, Dixfield, Maine.

She, generously, provided the following, which should be correct.
It was copied from the stones in the cemetery many years previously by another lady genealogist.

1. "Deacon" Joseph Eustis (5) - (See Item 38 of Prof. H. L.
Eustis)
died Dec. 20, 1847
age 79

2. Sarah Mason Eustis, his wife, died May 11, 1845, age 78.
(See Item 38 of Prof. H. L. Eustis)
Her epitaph read:
"She sleeps in earth close around her narrow bed - 'til earth be risen and last trumpet of God shall sound to call the slumbering dust to heaven."

3. John Chamberlain Eustis (5) - (See Item 41 of Prof. H.L.
Eustis)
b. Nov. 17, 1784
d. May 25, 1852

and his wife

4. Elizabeth Eustis
d. 1868

Mrs. Kidder, Librarian, said he died at home of his sister in Dixfield. (See Item 41 of Prof. H. L. Eustis). "Eliza" is probably Elizabeth, sister of John Chamberlain Eustis (5)

5. Cyprus Eustis (6) - son of Thomas (5) - (See Item 40 of Prof.
H.L. Eustis)

It seems not to be known if Charles Lyman Eustis (6), pioneer of Eustis, Maine (See Item 65 of Prof. H. L. Eustis) (See also letter from him to John P. Eustis (8) in compilation of Warner Eustis (9)

Charles Lyman Eustis (6) b. Nov. 15, 1802

d. July 2, 1889 at Beaufort, S.C.

Deborah Barker Eustis (wife) b. Apr. 9, 1816

d. Sept. 11, 1892 at Beaufort, S.C.

Vol. I) is buried at Dixfield, Maine. John P. Eustis (8) told Warner Eustis (9) he died there, in home of his daughter, but John P. Eustis (8) is not here to confirm this.

On October 23, 1970 Warner Eustis (9) and Albert Mason Eustis (8) inspected the large home built by Charles Lyman Eustis (6) in Dixfield, in 1825, at number 68 Main Street, Dixfield. It was in excellent repair. Next door is the early Congregational Church, said to have been built by him, in 1847, and rented to the Church Society for $50.00 per year. It is now a house. Charles Lyman Eustis (6) is reported to have driven to Boston, on a horse, to purchase a bell for the Church, with tone which he could approve. The large house is now called "The Lyman Eustis House."

Albert Mason Eustis (8) (Item B-11) provided on October 23, 1970, for publication by Warner Eustis (9), the following list of graves in the new Greenwood Cemetery, Dixfield, Maine:

born Aug. 19, 1837
died Aug. 14, 1925

his wife

2. Elizabeth Stowell died July 1947 at Dixfield, Maine
3. Stowell Eustis (8) - (B-16)
born Jan. 5, 1901
died Aug. 25, 1950 (killed by accident)
4. Stowell Eustis Jr. (9) - (B-20)
born Sept. 12, 1931
died June 25, 1953 (in Korea)

INTERESTING MEMORABILIA

Nov. 20, 1970, the office of The Wayside Inn at Sudbury, Mass. has confirmed, by phone, that the coach used by Gov. William Eustis (5), in which he took Lafayette to lay the corner stone of Bunker Hill Monument, is in the barn at The Wayside Inn and is the property of The Wayside Inn.

As of Nov. 20, 1970, the sword and regalia of Gov. William Eustis (5) are to be seen in a glass cabinet at the John Hancock House in Lexington, Mass.

In a publication entitled "The White House", published by White House Historical Association, on page 114, there is a colored picture entitled "The White House Library" and on opposite page 115 the text reads - "The urn-shaped French vase in the window sill is one of two given by Lafayette to Gov. Eustis of Massachusetts in 1824."

See Washington Quadrille by Jonathan Daniels Publishing Co., Garden City, N. Y. 1968 describes several prominent Eustis persons and their connections with Franklin Delano Roosevelt and affairs of state. Donated to N. E. Historic Genealogical Society, Boston, Mass.

MONUMENT - IN EUSTIS PINES, MAINE

Beside the road, between villages of Stratton and Eustis, Maine, will be found a monument comprising a large boulder, with a bronze relief, showing Charles Lyman Eustis (6) (Item 65 of Prof. Henry L. Eustis). Also, see his letter to his grandson, John P. Eustis (8), Vol. I Appendix.

This monument was erected in the Eustis Pines by John P. Eustis (8) in 1922, in the presence of Warner Eustis (9) and George Barker Eustis (7) (Item A-16, Vol. I) of Minneapolis. Warner Eustis, at that time, owned a summer camp on Greenbush Pond, on the road from Eustis to Chain of Ponds. Tim Pond and its outlet, Tim Brook, drain into the Dead River, close to Eustis Village. Tim was a helper of Charles Lyman Eustis, and Jim, for whom nearby Jim Pond is named, was also a valued helper in Eustis lumbering operations.

The Lewiston Journal of Lewiston, Maine on Saturday, October 30, 1937, gives a lengthy description of the Eustis Pines Park and Monuments there to Eustis and to Benedict Arnold, who passed thru this wilderness in his attack on Quebec. The road is known as the Arnold Trail.

In 1775 General Arnold and Major Bigelow are said to have rested several days with their men at Shadagee Falls, just north of Greenbush Pond, on the Dead River, known also as the North Branch of the Kennebec River. Major Bigelow climbed, what is now Mt. Bigelow, hoping to see the spires of Quebec, probably not realizing it was some 150 miles away.

Visitors to this monument should drive about one mile west from the monument to Eustis Ridge to see a famous panorama of this great forest area.

INDEX OF VOL. II

This index endeavors to include all persons, male and female, bearing the name of Eustis, who have been alive in United States since about 1878. This includes such others as we have found who were of different Eustis trees than those covered by Prof. Henry Lawrence Eustis, William Tracy Eustis, and myself, in Vol. I.

In connection with obtaining a complete current list, we have searched the telephone books of United States, usually with success, to identify every Eustis in United States, where ever it proved possible to get a response, by either letter or by telephone.

Corrections and additional facts about persons belonging to the previously established classification, number A-1 thru T-25.

Also, we list additional persons found, but not having any connection to other persons in the established classification, A-1 thru T-25, of Vol. I.

There are small families of vaguely identified persons that have recently come to our attention. These are added to Vol. II under T classification with such numbers as T-100, T-200, T-300, etc., leaving them so that others in the future can, perhaps, expand the histories of these vaguely identified persons.

I provide an expanded list of Libraries, who have received copies of Vol. I, and will receive copies of Vol. II.

I have provided a list amplifying the burial lists previously provided for:

Mt. Auburn Cemetery
Cambridge, Mass.

Newton Cemetery
Newton, Mass.

Milton Cemetery
Milton, Mass.

Winchester Cemetery
Winchester, Mass.

Old Eustis - Main Street Cemetery
Dixfield, Maine

Places of burial for many persons appear by name with their vital statistics throughout Vol. I and Vol. II.

I provide, hereinafter, a long list of addresses we have accumulated for their possible use, by others, either social or to help a future genealogist to locate persons of interest to them.
